Fire Adds to Agony; 100,000
Are Believed To Be Homeless

TAIHERU, Formosa, Apr. 22.—(INS)—Army carrier pigeons winging over two earthquake-devastated provinces today brought to Governor General Kenji Nakagawa word that yesterday's earthquakes had taken a toll of more than 3,000 dead and 7,000 injured.

While slight shocks continued to rock the Japanese-owned island, Governor Nakagawa conveyed the extent of the disaster to Edward Maney, the American consul.

"The number of casualties is higher than the Governor had anticipated," Maney told International News Service.

"The death list is rising as isolated villages slowly report their losses. Accurate details are hard to obtain because railway lines are wrecked and telephone wires down."

American and other foreign residents are safe, so far as could be ascertained, Maney said.

With at least 12,000 houses destroyed and as many more badly damaged, more than 100,000 persons, practically all Chinese, were homeless, and spent a sleepless night of terror in a driving rain in the open. Relief work was speedily organized, with the Red Cross dispatching parties from Tainan and Taichu, the larger towns of the stricken district, and the army battalion at Taichu sending 50 relief parties to set up field dressing stations.

Lack of medical supplies, coupled with the minor recurrent shocks, added to the agonizing condition of the natives huddled in the woods and on mountain-sides.

The first shock, at 6:02 a. m. Sunday, caught most of the natives sleeping in their huts of sun-dried dirt blocks, easily shaken down by the quake. A second temblor followed at 6:26 completing the destruction wrought by the first.

In the cities, where the houses were chiefly constructed of wood or stone, there was less damage from the temblors themselves, but fires sprang out in several places, raging through the timberlike houses and increasing the death toll.

Whole villages of huts and frame houses were wiped out. Railway tunnels caved in, landslides buried tracks, and bridges collapsed. It will be some days before telegraphs and telephones are operating again, officials said.

Electric power plants were destroyed, a major oil pipe line burst, gas mains were broken, adding darkness and further fire peril to the woes of the residents in larger towns.

MORRISVILLE TO ASK LOWER INSURANCE RATES

Council Cites Added Protection
Facilities In Its Plea

OTHER TOWN AFFAIRS

MORRISVILLE, Apr. 22.—Common Council at an adjourned meeting Friday night voted to ask the Board of Fire Underwriters to make a survey of Morrisville with a view to having fire insurance rates reduced.

Mayor Thomas B. Stockham suggested the action when he pointed out the borough had not only increased its fire protection by adding the new standpipe, but had also increased the fire department equipment. Councilman Elwood Kohl presented the motion.

A request from residents of the Arborlea section, in Lower Makedfield Township, for a reduction in water rates, was referred back to the water committee. Because these residents are outside the borough they are charged an assessment of two mills on their assessed valuation in addition to the regular water rates. The assessment is made so these water users will pay toward the bonded indebtedness on the water system. Kohl said Morrisville residents paid two mills until the new standpipe was built, when the sinking fund tax was increased another mill. He objected to any decrease in the Makedfield rates.

Councilmen John Blensdale and Kohl reported on the borough's efforts to have the canal bridge removed. Discussion on the condition of North Delmor avenue, East Bridge street, and Trenton avenue, led to a motion by Council to have the secretary ask the State Highway Department to repair these thoroughfares.

Council will also ask for Federal aid for public works projects.

In a communication from the Joint Bridge Commission, which has charge of the approaches to the lower bridge, Council was advised that the borough will be expected to pay for repairing the concrete roadway there at a cost of about $900. The Commission points out the water mains are directly under the concrete which was broken during various repair jobs.

Councilman Russell Pilger, chairman of the police committee, reported officers are now patrolling all streets in an effort to halt the wave of house robberies in the north end of town.

Millions Were Blessed

Vatican City, Rome, Apr. 22.—Millions all over the world today bore the Apostolic blessing—voiced Easter Sunday by the Pope, to more than 100,000 kneeling in St. Peter's Square and to the greater audiences by radio. The Easter ceremonies included sending of the first Pontifical High Mass by short-wave wireless to the United States where it was broadcast. American audiences heard the Pope himself sing the "Our Father."

Greatest Easter Pageant

Atlantic City, N. J., Apr. 22.—The greatest pageant in the annals of the far-famed Easter Sunday Parade on the boardwalk here was hailed today by city officials and business men as a forerunner of the 1935 prosperity for this resort. Hard hit in the early days of the depression, the "playground of the world" has found the Easter Parade an excellent barometer of the coming summer business.

For three consecutive years now, the pageant has increased and yesterday's 500,000 participants, termed a conservative estimate, was the cause of the overwhelming optimism today. Jams on the boardwalk were frequent and roller chairs were at a standstill as often as they were moving. The influx of visitors was so great, the resort, the city of hotels, was forced to turn many away.

Similar crowds were reported at virtually every resort along the Southern New Jersey coast.

New York's Greatest Easter Parade

New York City, Apr. 22.—The army of fashionables was demobilized today after the grandest Easter Parade along Fifth Avenue, since the gay days of 1929. 100,000 strong, it was probably the largest Easter throng in the history of Fifth Avenue. Under balmy skies they trudged nobly at each other's heels. Most came to sport their new habiliments in the sunshine. They looked at each other and themselves, and found things good.

Mae West Denies Marriage

Hollywood, Cal., Apr. 22.—"I have never heard of the fellow I am supposed to have married and never was in Milwaukee until four years ago." That was the comment by Mae West today on Milwaukee reports that a Mae West, then 18, had, in 1911, married a Frank Wallace, 21, Brooklyn, N. Y., actor. Denials also came from Joseph A. Timony, the actress' manager.

Relief Rolls Steadying

Harrisburg, Apr. 22.—Pennsylvania relief rolls which numbered 1,743,661 persons on April 13th, are beginning to show signs of steadying at that level. State Relief Director Robert L. Johnson reported today.

He pointed out the increase of 2,313 persons for the week ending April 13th was less than that shown for the three weeks immediately preceding. The total expenditures for direct and works relief was $3,747,033 for the week, a decline of $11,392 from the previous week.

MEETING IS SCHEDULED FOR EVENTS FOR GIRLS

Mrs. T. B. Megargee Asks All
Interested to Attend
The Session

TOMORROW EVENING

A meeting has been called by Mrs. Theodore B. Megargee for tomorrow evening, with all women of Bristol, Croydon and Edgely, interested in girls' affairs for Youth Week being invited to attend.

The session is scheduled for 7:30 o'clock at the Travel Club home, and an effort is to be made to formulate a definite program for the girls during the great week of the year, April 27th to May 4th.

As no women's organization in the borough has yet volunteered to assume responsibility, a few individuals have decided upon the meeting tomorrow night, as a means to elicit interest, and have more persons join their ranks. If no associations will assume responsibility, an effort will be made to outline the program through volunteers.

All ward leaders for girls' athletic events, and others interested are urged to attend.

The athletic events are to be under the general leadership of Miss Margaret Pope, who assumed responsibility for such some time ago. Through members of the Girl Reserves of Bristol high school, Miss Pope was able to secure ward leaders for athletics, and practice for athletic events is now being conducted by the young women.

But with a desire that the girls might have a well-rounded program of affairs during the week, the meeting is called for tomorrow night, those interested in such hoping that definite leadership will be taken, and that the girls will not be disappointed when the Youth Week rolls around.

BUNGALOW BLAZE NEAR HULMEVILLE NOW BEING PROBED

Evidence of Oil Discovered by Those First at The Scene

LOSS ESTIMATED AT $800

Property Owned by T. Oscar Harrison and Was Unoccupied

HULMEVILLE, Apr. 22.—An unoccupied bungalow was razed by fire in Middletown Township, Saturday night.

The property was owned by T. Oscar Harrison, of this borough, and was located just outside the borough, a short distance from the home of the owner.

The fire was discovered by J. M. Force, Sr., at 8:55, when he saw the flames from his home. Fire companies from Hulmeville and South Langhorne answered the alarm, but the flames had already engulfed the dwelling, and the place was a total loss. The bungalow, a small frame building, had not been occupied for several months. The loss is placed at $800, and no insurance was carried on the property.

Those arriving first at the scene of the blaze stated that use of oil was in evidence. Bucks County fire marshal William L. Stackhouse is investigating.

Another small bungalow nearby was guarded from the flames by the firemen. The one destroyed by the fire had been locked when he was last there a few days ago according to the owner. It was unfurnished.

He lived with his wife, Mrs. Margaret Meyer Hough, and a son, Harry D. Jr., at Hermitage and Edgewood avenues. He leaves also a daughter, Mrs. Morris P. Hunt, Jr., of Grand avenue, West Trenton; two grandchildren, and an uncle, James Milne, of this city.

Born here June 1, 1883, Mr. Hough attended Joseph Wood School, was graduated from Trenton High School in 1902 and attended the University of Pittsburgh for a year. He played basketball with the Bristol professional team which were national champions and he distinguished himself in this great sport.

Cause of Collapse

Moscow, Russia, Apr. 22.—Memel, the territory taken away from Germany to provide a seaport for Lithuania, provided the principal cause of the collapse of negotiations for the proposed Franco-Russian pact, potentially the strongest anti-German alliance, it was learned today. Russia's demand that the treaty include the French guarantee of the Baltic countries' frontiers, would mean, the French fear, that their troops would have to defend Memel in case Germany tried to regain that lost possession.

FIRST WARD GIRLS

All girls of the first ward are to meet at Leedom's field today at four o'clock. It is important that all girls be present at this time.

WILL THEY ANSWER THE CALL?

Bristol women's organizations have not come to the fore yet to aid their girls for Youth Week.

There is the need, there is the abundance of women's organizations—but there is no response.

In this borough of some 12,000 people, with about one-half of that number being in the female group, and with hundreds upon hundreds affiliated with women's organizations it seems strange that none are willing to answer the call—to sacrifice a little time to aid the girls.

The women's groups, as organizations, have all sorts of committees and departments in their make-up. Among the said departments or committees in the associations there are education, child welfare, music, art, juniors, community welfare, health and hygiene, and dozens more—all of which could find an outlet in affairs for the girls during Youth Week. Probably some of these committees or departments have never functioned before, or just pretend to function. Here is an opportunity, and a real one.

Ordinarily the girls would have had arranged for them a poster contest, but there is no group interested in art that will answer the challenge. The music contests would have been scheduled, but music committees of women's organizations seem to be falling down; and so on, with none apparently interested in the girls from the standpoint of their posts on committees of child welfare, juniors, community welfare, or health.

To date but a few individual women have volunteered their services.

With no association finding time or interest for the girls, a meeting has been called for tomorrow night in an effort to have more people take a definite interest in the plans. Now will the individuals show their colors? The purpose of the session is to attempt to work out a program for the young women of the area. Are there still some more women in Bristol who can find a few hours from a busy life of organization work, clubs, parties, etc., to give to the interest of the future home-makers and join the ranks of the individuals who have and are taking an active interest.

PROTECTING CRIME

After centuries of experimenting in search for means of protecting itself against crime organized society has only one chance in six of ridding itself of a killer. That is the condition in the United States as estimated by Captain Don Wilkie, criminologist and former federal agent. As a result of this unequal contest between the forces of law and order and the criminal elements, there are about 110,000 untaught murderers in the country, Wilkie estimates.

Those are startling figures, but it is a form of mathematics that deserves developing. If such facts are repeated frequently enough and are verified by adequate authorities, public opinion will demand a solution that will give decency and sanity better odds.

Among the factors that will be taken into account are judges who have to play politics to hold their jobs; shyster lawyers and their connivance with criminals; foolish survivals in law and in court procedure that protect the criminal rather than society, and faulty correlation among the law enforcement bodies of the various governmental units.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Oct. 23, 1873. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The factory and mills at Halmerville have been stopped for over a week, occasioned by the putting of a new wheel in the grist mill, all the water having to be drawn off from the beaver to enable the workmen to do so. On Monday evening last an Agricultural and Horticultural Society was organized. Rev. Mr. Brinckloe was elected president and W. P. Tilton secretary. On Monday evening next a meeting is called to organize a Historical and Numismatic Society. Building Association No. 3 met this evening, but no special business was transacted, although there was over $400 in the treasury to sell. The young people are contemplating forming a Lyceum, and Grace Church Sunday School are moving for a celebration at an early day.

On Monday morning, a prisoner named Charles McCue, made his escape from the county jail at Doylestown. By some means he gained the top of the prison wall and jumped down into a pile of manure, near the sheriff's stables. How he managed to scale the wall from the inside is not known, but he was evidently assisted by some of the other prisoners. He also had a light set of irons upon him, but he must have cut these off before endeavoring to escape. Several school children saw the prisoner jump from the wall, and they notified the prison authorities, who at once started out in search of the fugitive.

The "Mollie A. Hand," a three-masted schooner built at Cooper's Point, Camden, for Bristol parties, was launched last Thursday. She will carry 600 tons and be commanded by Captain E. W. Hand, of Bristol. The contract price is $30,000.

Joshua Newbold, an old and highly respected citizen residing near Attleboro, was found dead in his cornfield yesterday. The cause of his death is supposed to be apoplexy.

Rev. Hurly Baldy, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Doylestown, has resigned his pastorate. He intends travelling in Europe for his health, and will sail in a few weeks.

The Durham Iron Works, one of the largest industrial establishments in the county, has reduced the wages of its employees twenty-five per cent.

The Delaware was full of drift-wood yesterday.

David Powell, postmaster at Bensalem, while picking apples last Tuesday, fell from the tree and received very severe injuries.

An esteemed and benevolent citizen of Newportville, Dr. Schenck, we learn, is suffering at his country residence, under a severe attack of illness, and at times has been quite low. The loss of Dr. S. would be sensibly felt in this community where his open-handed charities have been so liberally dispensed for worthy objects. This fact puts it into the heart and wish of all his sincere friends that he may again speedily rally from his sickness into the enjoyment of full health and his wonted usefulness.

A preliminary meeting of the Lehigh District Sunday School Convention of the M. E. Church was held in the M. E. Church at Bristol Tuesday night, presided over by the Rev. J. S. J. McConnell, of Easton. The exercises consisted of singing and addresses by Rev. D. Young, G. Alcorn, L. B. Brown, and Mr. E. B. Dreher. A permanent organization was effected at 8½ o'clock on the morning of the 22nd, by the election of the Rev. W. B. Wood as president, D. L. Woolverton, Esq., of Easton, and William Kinsey, Esq., of Bristol, as vice presidents; E. B. Dreher, of Stroudsburg, secretary; and J. W. Wright, of Bristol, treasurer. . . . Address by Rev. J. B. McCullough, of Philadelphia, was heard. . . . Several appropriate addresses were also delivered during the evening by Rev. J. P. Miller, Rev. J. Pastorfield, Rev. E. Barwis, and Rev. O. S. Cook. . . .

LAWRENCE, Kan.—(INS)—A postcard mailed July 29, 1884, at Lincoln, Kan., about 140 miles from here, finally arrived and was delivered—51 years later.

FAR INTO THE NIGHT

SOMERVILLE, Mass.—(INS)—Because a woman trumped her husband's ace during a card game, police officers in a cruising car were sent to the home to stop the racket so neighbors could get some sleep. The officers gave the husband some advice on how to handle the situation more quietly and there were no more complaints from the neighbors during the night.

HOLLYWOOD—When the Kentucky Derby winner flashes across the finish line on May 4, the voice of Hollywood's most famous crooner will join the wild acclaim.

Bing Crosby, filmland's No. 1 racing enthusiast, will let nothing prevent him from seeing the classic. He'll even arrive a day early to attend the convention of "Kentucky Colonels", and will get his commission at that time from Governor Ruby Laffoon. For, among the various Hollywood celebrities who have been appointed, Bing, up to now, has been overlooked.

Afterwards, the star will make use of his usual quick dashes to keep a broadcasting date. He has one of two courses. To catch a plane for Hollywood right after the Derby, or to hop to Chicago and put on his broadcast there. In the latter event, his orchestra leader, George Stoll, will go along.

Bing has until late in May before he starts his new picture, "Two for Tonight".

The Brown Derby restaurant in Hollywood has unique proof of its renown as a rendezvous of the stars. Each month arrive more than 100 letters addressed to film celebrities, in its care. Manager Bob Cobb has a cupboard set aside for them, and delivers the mail as fast as he can. Some letters, however, will never be delivered. For they are addressed to Lilyan Tashman, Marie Dressler and other great ones who have passed on.

It is a curious fact that for months, sometimes years, after a star is dead, fan mail will continue to arrive. One of Shirley Temple's first birthday presents was a book from Georgia, poet-laureate, Harry Stillwell Edwards, who was born on the same date. Shirley can't read the title, "Eneas Africanus", but she likes the little poem written on the fly-leaf for her.

And she's pleased to hear from Mr. Edwards that they share the birthdate of several famous people—the

Friends of the late Alice Williamson in England are collecting subscriptions to give a library in her name to the Queen Charlotte hospital in London. Melody Stuart Ferguson, E. Phillips Oppenheim, Robert Hichens have written to Hollywood seeking aid of the novelist's many admirers here. Of author-friends of Mrs. Williamson, they are asking autographed copies of their favorite books. Of others, they would like checks—made out to Melody Stuart Ferguson and sent to Clara Manger at the Hollywood hotel. Miss Manger formerly was secretary to the novelist and will show credentials to any who wish to see them.

What newly arrived actor, the divorced husband of a famous star, is, in his quiet way, cutting quite a romantic swath in this still unsuspecting community?

HOLLYWOOD TICKER-TAPE

Gene Raymond, who certainly gets around, acquired Dicky Dell Doherty to the Beverly Wilshire the other evening. . . . Frances Dee will not accept that English picture offer, because Joel McCrea can't go with her. . . . P-I-lease! Naturally, Junior Laemmle wore a bathing suit in addition to a white cap and a red inner tube for his swimming lessons at Palm Springs. . . . The really nonchalant dresser at the desert resort is Fred Astaire. . . . With many of the film crowd wearing carefully elaborate play outfits, he lies around in an old pair of slacks and a sweat shirt. . . . The Douglas Shearers just can't decide what to name their new son. Papa says "James". Mama says "Van". . . . Alan Hale is spending all his spare time at the Methodist hospital with his little girl, who fell down the stairs and broke her back. She'll be there for several months but is bearing up bravely, the plucky kid.

"THE COLD FINGER CURSE"

by EDWIN DIAL TORGERSON

SYNOPSIS

During a party at her home, wealthy Mrs. Violet Elderbank is murdered and her jewels stolen. Among the guests were June and Jimmy Kirkman, her neighbors, and their tenants, St. Gregory Valcour, pseudo artist, Glenn Thurber, a newspaper reporter and dignified Douglas W. Coulter, a statistical expert. Marjorie Clarken, Thurber's fiancée, and Roger Duane, a specialty dancer, are also present. The crime occurred while the house was in darkness and drums were beating for Roger's Zulu dance. Violet had been summoned to a private telephone in her bedroom. Her maid, Elsie, found her chloroformed and gagged. About that time, Price Merriam, Violet's secretary and companion, who operated the lights for Roger's dance, had difficulty in turning them on after having put them out for Roger's entrance. Thurber disappeared during the performance to make a telephone call next door. Valcour had gone there to get some of his paintings for Violet. Elsie the maid claims she was busy in the kitchen when the telephone rang, but both Merriam and Cupples deny this. As he is about to let Darden into his room, Thurber discovers his key is missing. The reporter's fingerprints are found on Mrs. Elderbank's phone. Valcour claims that while he was in his studio next door, he saw Thurber come in, but did not see him go out again, nor did he hear Thurber telephoning. Roger tells the police he was putting the finishing touches to his make-up between 12:25 and 12:45 P. M., the time the murder was committed. Marjorie is the last to be interrogated and is furious with Darden for being kept waiting so long, threatening to use her wealthy father's influence to crush him. "The rich mustn't threaten the poor, lady. It makes the poor sear and the poor make up the mob which is a terrible beast to have after you," Darden replies, cheerfully.

CHAPTER XVII

Marjorie liked him better. "Maybe you're not so dumb," she said with a more cheerful insolence. "I'll give you a tip."

"Good. Do that."

"Watch this cockeyed butler Mrs. Elderbank had working for her. He's a crook if I ever saw one. How do you know he didn't commit this crime?"

"I don't know," said Darden genially. "But I know he didn't put in the fake call that got the poor lady upstairs, and I know he didn't leave his finger-prints around."

"Canary whiskers! Nobody believes in finger-prints but detectives in books. You look like a good, honest, hardboiled, flat-footed cop with common sense. You ought to know better."

"Thanking you, I remain—"

"Let me tell you something about this sneaky butler. He has been slipping up behind people all night trying to hear what they were saying. He served three times too much liquor, trying to make everybody cockeyed."

"Did he succeed?"

"They were all pretty ripe, if I'm a judge. Some of them thought the murder scare was on the program, until they saw your hefty bluecoats trooping in. What's more, I saw something from the roof that nobody else saw."

"What?"

"I was," Marjorie raised her hands. "But if I ever go prowling again I hope papa will feed me to the cat!"

"Does your papa know where you are now? Have you telephoned your people?"

"No. They know I'm 'out,' and that's sufficient. With your kind permission I'll go, now, and get Glenn Thurber out of jail. Is that where you've got him?"

"Yes. And you can't get him out—not to-night. Tomorrow perhaps your papa will buy the jail and the city hall and a couple of governors. But you'd be wasting your time to-night. You'd better go home and sleep over it."

"Thank you, I will, then. But I'll be back tomorrow."

Thirty-Second Street, Samuels was ordered to stay on the job and jail his man when he found him.

Elsie Seever, the maid, occupied the hall bedroom on the top floor of the Elderbank house and was ordered to remain there for the night, much to her affliction. Cupples did not sleep in but lived at a boarding house in East Sixteenth Street. He was permitted to go home, but a detective more or less unobtrusively followed him.

There was also a report from Detective Mabry, who had "laid the eye" on the house next door. Roger Duane, it seemed, had been observed through the windows of the basement apartment, in brief converse with the artist, St. Gregory Valcour. Presently Duane had departed and detectives had shadowed him to the house where he lived, two blocks away. Evidently he had retired for what remained of the night.

"All right," said Sergeant Darden to Merriam. "We'll take a look at your place now."

There was little to distinguish this dwelling outwardly from the other fine old brownstone houses in the block. The interior, however, had been furnished and redecorated to create of it a small apartment house that would be, as it was sometimes advertised to be, distinctive in its quiet elegance. Cushiony, soft-toned carpets covered hall floors and stairs; windows at the landings were of Tudor casement type, beveled mirrors relieved the walls, and the few articles of furniture found in niches were authentic and desirable antiques.

Merriam's small apartment on the top floor was furnished expensively and in taste.

"Here's the way to the roof," said Merriam, opening the door of what was apparently a clothes closet. "At the bottom here it is really a closet—and the steps to the roof are supposed never to be used, except for emergency purposes."

"No," quipped Darden softly. He flashed his light up the stairs. There was a skylight trap door here, too. He examined the stairs for dust. "Mighty clean," he commented, "for steps that are never used."

"Why, there's a housemaid here who is a wonder," explained Merriam. "When she cleans I mean she cleans. Trained in England, and she believes in 'turning out' every room in the house once a week—you know, taking out every article of furniture and cleaning thoroughly."

"Did she clean yesterday?"

"Oh, she cleans every day. The turn-out is just once a week."

"Watch this cockeyed butler Mrs. Elderbank had working for her. He's a crook if I ever saw one," Marjorie told Darden.

"Shall I get you a taxicab?"

"You're getting sweet now, Sergeant. That's the way to treat a stubborn lady—feed her sugared milk. Haven't you got a police car I could ride in?"

"Why, I think there's one outside. Yes, I'll have some one run you up."

"That would be swell. You're a good egg, Sarge."

She shook hands with him solemnly. The Sergeant blinked his eyes and shook his head vigorously when she had gone. Then he grinned. "Cute little devil!" he murmured. "The man doesn't live that some woman couldn't make a fool of!"

He cast about cheerfully for something more to do before calling it a night.

Merriam, who looked as though he had bathed and freshened up with a new dress shirt, was affably on hand to assist him further, said the impeccable master of ceremonies. Darden thought he looked much too pleased with himself. He disliked handsome men.

"Why don't you go home?" the Sergeant demanded. "Where did you say you lived?"

"Oh, just a step away. Three doors up the street. I have an apartment at Two-Sixty."

"In the same block, eh?" Darden appraised him with a swift slant gaze. "Maybe we'd better go over and take a look, eh? Trap door to the roof ever used there?"

"Why, it's right in my apartment," said Merriam, a little startled, "but I don't know that it has ever been used. Let's do go over."

Darden held private conversations with the plainclothes men who had come from headquarters. There was a call from Detective Samuels, who reported that the colored maid's friend, Johnny Hankins, had not yet returned to his lodgings in One Hundred and

WHAT KIND DID YOU GET?

WHEN Mrs. Brown tells Mrs. Smith about the new car, Mrs. Smith is pretty sure to ask, in genuine, friendly interest, "What kind did you get?" With a new piano, a hot-water heater, or a package of pastry flour, it's likely to be the same. . . . For names mean something to every wise woman.

The name of any commercial product is of interest only because its maker has made it mean something . . . has made it stand for definite qualities in the public mind. And that very fact provides one of the greatest helps to better living. If you're a regular reader of advertising, you know what you are getting—and you get your money's worth.

There is no element of risk in the purchase of any article advertised in the columns of this newspaper. So make the advertising columns your guide. They will save you time, money and effort . . . and bring you better things.

Vallee Socks Heckler

Atlantic City, N. J., Apr. 22.—Just part of show business. Nonchalantly Rudy Vallee referred in this manner today to his fistic embroglio with a heckler on the Steel Pier yesterday. "A performer has to expect these things, I guess," Rudy declared. "They are all in the game." 5,000 spectators were watching Vallee's variety show on the pier and a male dancer was doing a solo number when a man in the audience began to pitch pennies on the stage. When the crooner expressed his disapproval, the heckler shouted, "They're not for you, they're for the dancer, I don't like him." Suddenly Vallee stopped his band and retorted, "I don't care who they are for, don't throw any more." When the heckler ignored this warning and tossed an-

TENNIS TOURNAMENT GOES TO SEMI-FINALS

MORRISVILLE, Apr. 22—Play in the Lower Bucks County Tennis Tournament has progressed through to the semi-finals and with four paddle wielders still left in the competition, thrilling matches should result before a champion is decided upon. With some 30 original entrants, the field has dwindled down to four Morrisville celluloid players and many upsets featured the early round competition.

Jesse Huggins, Sr., after passing in to the second round on a default, defeated Elwood Herman in a bitter-fought three-game battle. However, Huggins came up against brilliant Earl Wood and was eliminated. Wood thereby reaching the semi-final round. Herman had previously set back another favorite, James Forrester, in the first round but dropped his quarter-final embroglio to Huggins.

George Hoove took over Bill Stok and Fred McGowan, Jr., was the victor over Frank Reitzle. Other first round matches found Jesse Huggins, Jr., the winner over Jim Moffett; Ted Howe over Dick Fox; Masked Marvel over George Hibbs; Joe Schwind over Hal Turpin; Forrest Sweeney over Ted Hansen and Bob Anderson over William Nutt. Jack Scullin passed into the second round when Ed Byrne failed to appear.

Wood defeated Hoover in the second round match and then later went on to beat Huggins. S. Huggins, Jr., beat McGowan and Howe went into the quarter-finals on a default. Joe Schwind kept on by eliminating the Masked Marvel in two straight games. The Marvel was immediately unmasked and turned out to be a member of the fair sex of Morrisville. Fans and spectators alike were of the opinion that Rupert Werling was the odd one, but the unmasking settled the question beyond a doubt. Scullin won over Forrest Sweeney and reached the quarter-finals while Bob Anderson won his way to the field of eight with a default. The quarters found Wood beating Huggins, Sr., Howe beating Huggins, Jr., Schwind automatically entering the semi-finals on a bye, and Scullin taking over Anderson.

The semi-finals and the championship match will be played on Tuesday evening, April 23, in the Sea Scout room of the Community House, beginning at 8 o'clock. Director Bob White announces that dancing will be enjoyed after the title play, and that Otto Groen will present the Otto Groen trophy to the titlist.

Gil Sussman, crack Trenton celluloid ace, acted as judge of the matches, and Mr. Trolle, Trenton, assisted in the interpretation of the rules.

Week-end guests of Mrs. Anna Gosline, 547 Linden street, were William Logan, Trenton, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Larrirey and son Jack, Philadelphia.

NEW YORK, Apr. 22—(INS)—Broadway's a goofy street, tramped by strange but often interesting people. For instance, there's Babe Ruth.

Back on the big stem and talking more like a vice-president than an outfielder, at that you can get plenty of even money he is more of a v. p. than an o. f.

Figures every home he gets means 10,000 more a week at the gate, and how the Braves need those fat gates. Like Jimmy Foxx, Babe figures 50 homers will always lead any league, that's par for the course.

There's Big Tim Mara, one of the biggest club house bookies, mourning the passing of the big plungers, says you can count on your fingers the men who will bet $2,500 on a race, all small change artists nowadays.

Tim, of course, is strictly anti-pamphlets, shows you what the machines do at a dog track, crowd brings $50,000, bets 10 races, and goes home with $9,842.51, that's what a 15 per cent. kitty does to the two-buck boys.

There's Johnny Buckley, Jack Sharkey's old manager, now piloting Lou Brouillard, and planning European invasion. Johnny hasn't had a headache since Jack retired.

And speaking of headaches, didja ever hear about the time Jimmy Johnson tried to hide the newspapers from an old fighter of his who was being panned every day? Jimmy worried for months and then discovered his pug could neither read nor write.

And didja know Connie Mack says plenty of spitballs are being thrown in the majors although the law says no. Connie mentions particularly one veteran White Soxer who uses the moist ball in a tough spot, and gets away with it. Not all the larceny is confined to the fight racket.

The Giants expect to sell out the Polo Grounds for the opening tomorrow. Babe Ruth, of course.

BRADDOCK READY FOR BAER IN JUNE

By Davis J. Walsh
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Apr. 22—(INS)—The man is apparently so good that he's soon to fight for the heavyweight championship of the world. He was so bad a year ago that his worst fears were realized, and before he knew it, he had to work for a living.

And there being no sense at all to a situation like that, I decided to take the matter up today with James J. Braddock's manager. What, says I, is the answer to all this drivel? Not anticipating the inquiry, the manager, a Mr. Joe Gould, was taken unexpectedly candid and almost told the truth. In fact, he actually thought of very few answers and only one of them was good.

It was so good that it dealt with the contention that James J. Braddock qualifies to fight and lick Max Baer in June (this is still Gould, not Walsh), because, at a none too distant time when he was weakened by lack of food and his resistance was low, he went to work. There is a certain amount of personal brilliance in this reasoning, which accounts for the fact that Mr. Gould has been able to resist and even outwit work all these years. At work, it seems, the man learned to use his left hand. (This is still Gould).

"You see," he explained, "Braddock was always a right hand puncher. But in his last fight before going to work on the docks, he injured his right hand and had to carry railroad ties with his left. Yes, the poor fellow had to carry railroad ties. The result is that he now punches practically as well with his left as he does with his right and, if you want to know any more about that, ask Corn Griffin, John Henry Lewis and Art Lasky.

"And, oh yes, I almost forgot. After the Baer fight, ask Baer."

PENN STATE ENTERS LARGE TEAM FOR RELAYS

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 22—(INS)—Penn State, winner of eleven Penn Relay championships since 1918, has entered its largest team in many years in the 41st annual University of Pennsylvania Relay Carnival, to be held on Franklin Field April 26 and 27.

The Nittany Lions, long famed for their distance stars, have entered a complete squad consisting of seven relay teams and 28 individual stars, for the special events.

Relay teams will run in the quarter-mile, half mile, one mile, two mile, four mile, sprint medley and distance medley relays.

The 28 men nominated for the special individual events will display their prowess in the 100 meter dash, high jump, broad jump, hammer throw, hop-step-and-jump, 3000 meter steeplechase, 110 meter hurdle race, the shot put and the discus throw.

Charley Werner, head coach of the Nittany Lions, has singled out two men to do iron man work. Harry Sigel, who football fans will remember for his feats on the gridiron last Fall, will face a busy two days. He has been selected to run on the four relay teams, the sprint medley and the quarter-mile relays to be run on Friday, and the half-mile and mile relays on Saturday.

The other strapping, G. W. Harvey, is a runner coach Werner developed into a distance man this year, and will bear considerable watching in the future. He will compete with the four-mile, distance medley and the two-mile relay teams.

Compromise Likely

Washington, D. C., Apr. 22—A compromise between Congressional Democratic factions and New Deal liberals designed to save the Wheeler-Rayburn utilities holding company bill from defeat, appeared likely today. The battle over the measure entered a critical stage with the House Interstate Commerce Commission planning to establish its course of action in secret session this week.

Unless strong administration pressure is exerted, it appeared probable that the committee will soften the blow at gigantic enterprises. With Republican members of the House united against the bill as written by the New Deal liberals, Democratic forces were sharply divided.

Fear that heavy losses may be sustained by millions of stockholders in utility companies if holding companies must be dissolved in five years, admittedly had brought about the revision of Congressional feeling on the measure.

When President Roosevelt sent the measure to Congress urging that the bill be enacted into law, it was received with unusual enthusiasm. The enthusiasm, however, the leaders say, cooled somewhat under the high-powered propaganda drive directed against the bill from all sections of the country.

Move Favors Reich

London, England, Apr. 22—The nation's that led in "condemning" Germany's rearmament at Geneva last week today made an important move in favor of the Reich when Britain, France and Italy dispatched "strong representation" to Lithuania over the situation in Memel, formerly German territory. The western powers referring to the Reich's charges that Lithuania discriminated against the German majority at Memel, suggested that the territorial directorate which governs Memel be made more representative of the political and national make-up of the elects' Memel chamber. The Lithuanian government is understood to have held its ground, replying that Germany has been invited to join the directorate but the Nazis had prevented this step and a deadlock resulted. The Allies' action at Memel came just when they and ten other members of the League of Nations Council were studying Chancellor Adolph Hitler's terse communication of Saturday in which Germany "challenged the right" of the council members "to set themselves up as judges" of Germany's rearmament.

Will Lady Luck Smile Again?

By BURNLEY

Last year they were calling Mickey Cochrane "Lucky Mike" because he and his Detroit Tigers got the benefit of all the good breaks during the 1934 pennant campaign. The Tigers were riding the crest last season, with everything in their favor, and it was not until they ran up against those fiery Cardinals that Lady Luck began to desert them.

The most remarkable streak of good fortune that aided the Tigers in their climb to the top was the absence of injuries to any of their star players all season long. Almost every team is bound to have several players incapacitated due to injuries or illness during the long and grueling stretch of the baseball season, but in 1934, Detroit's good fortune in this regard was almost phenomenal.

According to the so-called law of averages, the luck of Cochrane's trained Bengals is due to change this season, so Mickey would do well to prepare himself for at least a few tough breaks. If the Tigers can repeat, Cochrane will deserve the title of miracle manager perhaps more than any other pilot in baseball annals, for the Detroit vet-rank who helped pull the team through in 1934 are fading rapidly, and the younger replacements are far from outstanding.

Just how well such veterans as Goose Goslin, Firpo Marberry, General Crowder and Cochrane himself will be able to stand the gaff this year is strictly a matter of conjecture. Mike says he is building his hopes around the younger Detroit stars—around such brilliant youngsters as Hank Greenberg, Jo-Jo White and Schoolboy Rowe.

Greenberg, a heavy slugger, may be even more potent with the willow this season. White is one of the speediest men in the majors, a good hitter and a flashy performer in the outfield. Of course Rowe is counted on to roll up at least 25 wins for Cochrane, and the Tiger-pennant hopes will stand or fall with the Schoolboy.

The question remains—Will Detroit be able to come through again if Lady Luck withholds her smile of last year?

The cigarette industry could never have been what it is except for these modern cigarette machines...

They make good cigarettes and smokers know each individual cigarette receives the most careful inspection.

You'd hardly believe such attention to detail possible unless you could see it with your own eyes.

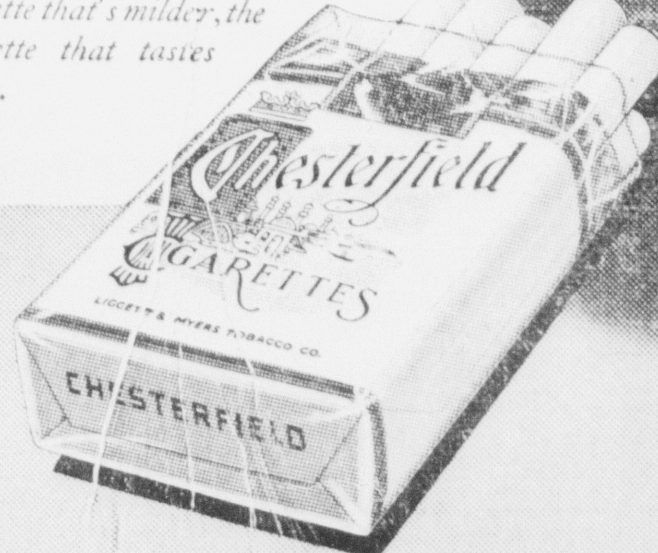

When the Chesterfield tobacco comes to the cigarette making machines it has been blended and cross-blended.

Then it is cut into long even shreds just the right size to smoke right and burn right.

Every Chesterfield Cigarette has to be perfectly made to get by our inspectors.

Until you open the package yourself the cigarettes are scarcely touched by human hands.

Mild ripe tobaccos, skilled workers and the most modern up-to-date machinery all help to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

Everything that Science really knows about making cigarettes is used in making CHESTERFIELDS
